What is Color Coded Cleaning?

Our Color Cleaning System combines superior cleaning technology with the productivity and sanitation benefits of visual coding.

3'R Cleaning Professionals use microfiber, which is a dense nylon material that can hold six times its weight in water — making it far more absorbent than cotton. The positively charged fibers attract dust and can penetrate the microscopic surface pores of most floor materials and other surfaces.

Cross-contamination occurs when bacteria is spread between people, food, surfaces and equipment. Responsible cleaning practices help avoid cross-contamination, thereby minimizing the incidence of illness and disease.

Effective cleaning helps reduce absenteeism and saves the customer money by being prepared with a defensive cleaning measure for your facility.

Is "Premium" Cleaning Really Important?

Decreased on-the-job productivity and employee absence because of health result in significant costs to employers above and beyond medical spending.

- Health-related work losses are estimated to cost US employers more than $260 billion each year, and may cost some companies more than direct medical expenditures.
- Allergies were the most prevalent health condition.
- The flu causes U.S. employees to miss approximately 17 million workdays due to flu, at an estimated $7 billion a year in sick days and lost productivity.
- The economic cost of lost productivity due to the common cold approaches $16.6 billion attributed to on-the-job productivity loss with another $8 billion to absenteeism.

Absenteeism costs were estimated on average hourly wages plus benefits for civilian workers in the United States ($29.18 per hour for all US companies), multiplied by 8 hours per workday, times 5 days a week, 52 weeks per year.
